The Changing Distribution of Earnings in OECD Countries

A B Atkinson

This book examines what people are paid and how pay differences have changed over time. The author presents new theories that challenge current thinking on the impact of education, technology, globalization and the rigidity of labour markets. Beginning with an accessible introduction, it then provides a model and new empirical data for 20 countries.

Fighting Poverty in the US and Europe

A World of Difference

Alberto Alesina and Edward Glaeser

"[A] remarkable book ... Mr Alesina and Mr Glaeser, both Harvard economists, are doing what the best in their profession do well these days: seeking to explain society not merely with conventional economic tools but with analysis of institutions, geography and social behaviour."

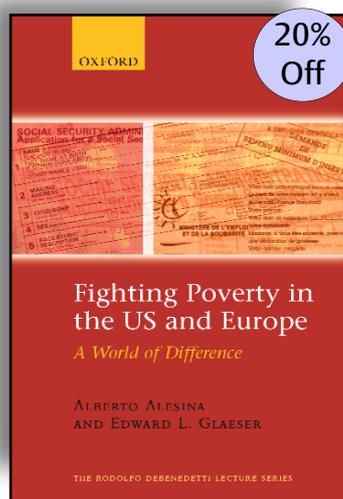

The Economist

A concise, multidisciplinary, and timely study of the differences between the US and Europe's welfare systems, written by top-notch economists drawing on in-depth original research

Working Hours and Job Sharing in the EU and USA

Are Europeans Lazy? Or Americans Crazy?

Edited by Tito Boeri, Michael Burda, and Francis Kramarz

20% Off

Discount code: EXPEEA08

In the last 50 years the gap in labour productivity between Europe and the US has narrowed considerably with estimates in 2005 suggesting a EU-US labour productivity gap of about 5 per cent. Yet, average per capita income in the EU is still about 30% lower than in the US. This persistent gap in income per capita can be almost entirely explained by Europeans working less than Americans.

Why do Europeans work so little compared to Americans? Can they be induced to work more without reducing labour productivity? If so, how? This volume explores these questions and many more in order to understand the changing nature of the hours worked in the USA and EU, as well as the effects of policies that impose working hour restrictions.

Women at Work

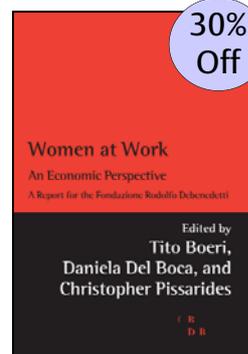

An Economic Perspective

Edited by Tito Boeri, Daniela Del Boca, and Christopher Pissarides

Covering employment and wage gender gaps, participation of women, fertility, and the welfare of children, this insightful volume considers the trend towards greater participation of women in labour markets. It addresses the trade-offs involved in increasing participation of women in paid employment, setting out a better informed policy debate about these issues, and paving the way to realistic targets and ways to achieve them.

Education and Training in Europe

Edited by Giorgio Brunello, Pietro Garibaldi, and Etienne Wasmer

Europe is one of the richest and most educated areas of the world, yet it faces low economic growth, structural difficulties in the labour market, and stiff international competition. This book looks at the current state of play in education and training in Europe and asks what policies are necessary to ensure Europe can meet future labour demands.

Structural Reforms Without Prejudices

Edited by Tito Boeri, Micael Castanheira, Riccardo Faini, and Vincenzo Galasso

What makes economic reforms a success or a failure? Why do we witness ambivalent attitudes to reforms? Can governments implement reforms differently, without inflicting prejudice to large fringes of the population? This book explores these issues by comparing a number of reforms across a large set of countries and sectors. It aims to help readers understand the process of reform and the origins of success, and to help reformers discover new ways to implement reforms to benefit the most people.
